

The image is a collage of three historical photographs. The top photograph shows a wide street in a town with several multi-story buildings. The middle photograph shows a vintage typewriter, possibly a Remington, with some papers and a small box next to it. The bottom photograph shows a large bonfire with bright yellow and orange flames rising from a pile of logs. The text '≡HAUPTWACHE≡' is superimposed over the middle photograph.

This historical cell door is from the time the Hautwache still served as the police headquarters and the town's jail.

The freedom fighter Uwe Jens Lornsen published a political writing in 1830 regarded as damaging the State. For this he was condemned to serve one year's detention. From 1831 to 1832 he spent this year in Rendsburg's police headquarters right here at the Hauptwache. Perhaps he sat behind this door.....
